

ASHVILLE, NEW HOLLAND WIN IN MEET

RUM SCANDAL IN LANCASTER IS NEAR END

State Prohibition Commissioner Expected To Terminate Probe.

By International News Service
With the Lorain "liquor-raid" scandal "officially" dead, and the Lancaster "women - wine - decoy" case threatening momentarily to pass into oblivion, the return of state prohibition Commissioner R. R. Beetham to Columbus was being anxiously awaited today.

Beetham, who is expected to reach the capital city sometime late today or early tomorrow, will take over the reins of the probe in the Lancaster "affair," and if the dry commissioner acts with the swiftness, yet deliberateness, for which he is noted, the case will probably be history by this time Monday.

Despite the statement of Russell Cunningham, county prosecutor at Lancaster, that he was preparing to file additional charges against Ed Little, suspended Dayton dry agent, who was arrested and then released on charges of contributing to the delinquency of 16-year old Helen "Billie" Conrad, it appears now that Cunningham will have a hard time to substantiate that declaration or any charges that he might file.

SEEK DIVORCEE
Meanwhile a search in three counties, Franklin, Fairfield and Hocking, is being conducted for Crystal Getz, 23-year-old Logan divorcee. Cunningham declared that testimony from her would result in the filing of charges against Little.

It was pointed out, however, that Mrs. Getz is not a minor, and that any charges in connection with the purported wine-drinking episodes could not be filed as a result of her testimony.

Her absence denotes that she is "notoriety shy" and even if authorities are successful in finding her for questioning, the odds are that she will not reveal anything that would cause more publicity, which additional charges against Little surely would.

Parents of the other girls involved are also anxious that the affair be forgotten.

"UNFAIR," LITTLE SAYS
Little, in a statement to the press, lamented the unfairness with which he charges newspapers printed the story.
He declared that he had never given the girls want to drink, but that the liquid was cider. He further alleged that the reason he had sought introductions to the girls was that they were reported to "know" the bootlegging establishments.

His alleged police record, which newspapers printed, is false, he declared. There are three Ed Littles in Dayton, and police records do not distinguish between any of them, Little asserted.

COLE IN CLEAR
John O. Cole, the second suspended dry agent, who assisted in the "clean-up" of Lancaster, is apparently "out of the woods" as far as civil authorities filing charges against him is concerned.
The only result of his connection with the Lancaster and Lorain raids, would be his dismissal by Director Beetham. That is the worst that could reasonably happen on the developments up to this time. The same applies to Lorain.

SCIOTO FARMER ASSIGNS PROPERTY

John H. Rush, farmer, Scioto-twp., has made an assignment of his property for the benefit of his creditors in probate court to Irvin F. Snyder and Richard Simmons, assignees. The property consists of about 700 acres of land in Scioto-twp. and his personal property. It is valued at approximately $40,000.
The deed of assignment was filed Saturday and bond in the sum of $40,000 was jointly provided by the assignees.

"I Got All the Breaks" Says Boy University President

Hard Work During School
Killed Interest in Anything but Work

"MY YOUTH, of course, may be a handicap to me in my new job, the biggest I've ever tackled, but nothing can be done about it." Thus Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of Chicago University at age 30, treats the question of his age.

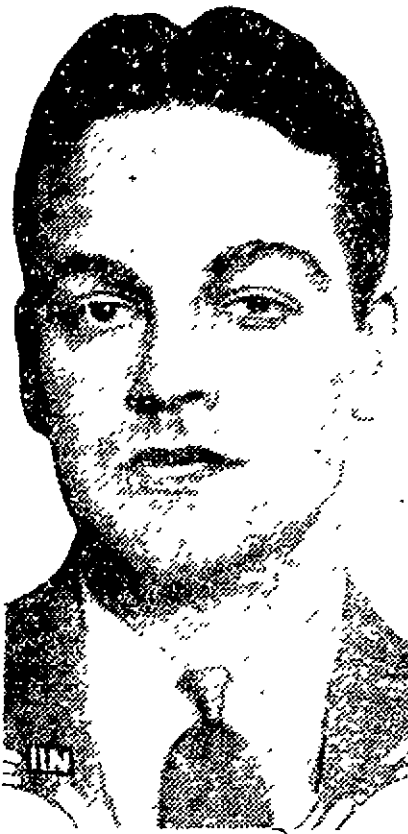

For all of his youthful appearance, there is little of the boy about Hutchins. The struggle of his college years and responsibilities beyond his age have killed any "play spirit" he might have had. Hutchins has a certain humor. He had been called to Washington with Professor Charles E. Clark, of the Law School, to tell President Hoover about his four-year inquiry into the American judicial system now being conducted by the school. He encountered a Justice during his visit.

"So this is the boy 'dean' of Yale," said the Justice. "I suppose you still teach your students that all judges are crazy."

"No," Hutchins replied quietly. "We let them find that out for themselves."

Robert Maynard Hutchins, tall, slight, boyish-faced man, who was secretary of the Yale Corp. at 23, dean of Yale Law School at 28 and now is to be president of the University of Chicago at 30, asserts luck has been the chief factor in his unprecedented educational career.

He professes not to know why the Yale Corp. chose him as secretary before he was graduated from college. He says he can't account for his appointment as dean of Yale Law School, soon after his graduation from the school. His appointment as president of the University of Chicago "stunned" him, he says.

Dean Hutchins has no hobbies. His only love is his family—he has a wife and baby daughter. His work is "just a habit," Hutchins says.

"I waited on table, washed dishes, worked in a factory and organized a co-operative tutoring school," he said. "But I wouldn't advise a student to work as hard as I did. It burns up his energy."

If Hutchins has advocated any particular educational theory, it is universally in training for law.

He believes a good lawyer should understand something of psychology, sociology and medicine, and he introduced this theory into practice.

DEATH TOLL IN BERLIN'S RIOT MOUNTS TO 24

Newspaperman Among Victims
—150 Injured Are In City's Hospitals.

BERLIN, May 4.—Twenty-four persons, including Charles Mackay, a newspaper correspondent and a British subject, have been killed in the wave of violent rioting which began on May Day and continued until early today, engulfing two districts of Berlin in blood.

A number of women are among the dead.

More than 150 persons have been wounded. Some of them are in hospitals at death's door.

The state of siege which was proclaimed by the police in the Neukoenig and Wedding districts was lifted at 4 o'clock this morning.

WIRE BARRICADES

Barbed wire entanglements and barricades which had been erected in the streets were removed.

The fighting which began with skirmishing between communists and police on May Day eve grew in violence in the districts inhabited by workers until it assumed the proportions of a pitched battle.

Desultory sniping continued throughout the night.

Mackay, who formerly lived in Nelson, New Zealand, was shot through the head and killed while watching the police mopping up communist snipers in bloody Hermann street, in the Neukoenig district. This street had been darkened under the state of siege regulations.

HAIL, THEN SHOOT
Police officials said they were in doubt whether Mackay had been shot by the police or by a communist sniper because the weapons used by the Reds were often identical with the police weapons.

Mackay's death was not observed at once. His body was found lying in the street amid the battle wreckage some time after he had been shot.

Under the state of siege the police halted a person only once and then shot if he failed to halt.

According to the police records, Mackay, who was 37 years old, represented the Waitara Daily News, of New Zealand.

MISS TALLEY LACKS REGRET

Opera Singer, Closing Career
Saturday Night, Will Retire To Farm.

CLEVELAND, May 4.—Marion Talley has no regrets.

The sensational young opera star who makes her farewell appearance in "Lucia Di Lammermoor" here tonight, received newspaper reporters and posed for pictures, with her mother and father, in her hotel suite today.

Answering questions with characteristic deliberation she said she had no definite plans but that tonight's appearance would mark the close of her career. She expects to live on a farm. She denied that matrimony or social life had any part in her decision.

"No, it won't be a model farm," she smiled. "Most model farms don't make money. I want mine to at least break even. It may be a chicken farm or a grain farm. No, I don't know where it will be. I've had so many letters that I think everybody in the United States must have a farm to sell."

The girlish singer who rose to brilliant heights, perhaps more rapidly than any other person in operatic history, exhibited no emotion over the prospect of ending her career at 22.

A contract to sing for phonograph records for two years and a half will be met, she said, but other than that she intends to do no more singing.

NO WORK; ENDS LIFE

CLEVELAND, May 4.—Despondent and unable to find employment since last October, John Perko 50 hanged himself with a clothes line at his home, according to a police report today.

Perko's wife, Mary, discovered his body hanging from a rafter on the back porch.

CORONER CHASING MACHINE GUNS IN CHICAGO

Coroner Bundesen of Cook County, Ill., questioning Lieut. Nick Mongreig, of Cicero, Ill., about machine guns purchased by Hawthorne Kennel Club, in which Al Capone was interested. Mongreig admitted guns were delivered and turned over to the track. Bundesen is conducting the investigation into the North Clark St. Massacre in which seven gangsters died.

BOY WHO TOLD UNDER ARREST

College Youth Held As Material Witness in Dorothy Peacock Slaying.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 4.—Eugene Bussey, the man who "kissed and told," was under arrest on a material witness charge today, the latest sequel to the killing and cremation of Dorothy Peacock by her husband, Earle Peacock. The latter is held for the grand jury on a murder charge.

Bussey was taken into custody at the Hotel Biltmore in New York a few hours after District Attorney Frank A. Coyne had stated his belief that the John Hopkins university student's story was of no importance. Bussey had related stories of "petting parties" with Peacock's wife before she was slain and burned by the jealous husband.

Coyne believes he has obtained two important admissions from Peacock that will strengthen the premeditation theory now being built up against the young radio expert.

Peacock admitted that he lured his wife to their Mt. Vernon apartment and struck her over the head one minute after she entered, Coyne said, thus nullifying his previous story that he had struck her in a moment of jealous rage.

Peacock also abandoned his story that he strangled his wife after she had pointed a pistol at him, Coyne said, and admitted the latter was a safety catch on the pistol of which he was aware although his wife was not.

HEMORRHAGE CAUSES DEATH

Mrs. John Aldenderfer Dies
Friday Afternoon at Home Near Stoutsville.

Mrs. Jemima Aldenderfer, 73, died Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her home two miles north of Stoutsville. Death was due to cerebral hemorrhage after an illness of several years.

She was born June 17, 1856 near Dutch Hollow, and was the daughter of Joseph and Hannah Steward. On Jan. 6, 1878 she was married in marriage to Eli Aldenderfer who, with three children survives. The children are Ed, John Aldenderfer and Mrs. Nora French, of Amanda and Clarke Aldenderfer of Stoutsville.

Of her immediate relatives several sisters survive. They are Mrs. Nancy Aldenderfer, Mrs. Mary Barr, Mrs. Minnie Marion, Mrs. Emma Myers, Mrs. Alice Wilson, and two brothers, Charles and Sherman Cruty.

Administration Senators Battle To Prevent Hoover Defeat on Farm Aid

Stop Vote on Export Debuture Plan As Idea Gains Supporters.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Alarm- ed by an amazing change of farm relief sentiment, administration leaders in the senate today were fighting to save President Hoover from defeat in his first test with the new congress.

A decisive vote on the export debuture plan has been postponed until next week, due to a sudden change in sentiment. The revolt has spread through the entire insurgent bloc, dribbled into the ranks of regular Republicans, and won over nearly the solid Democratic side of the senate.

Whereas a week ago, when debate began on the debuture, private polls showed it would be rejected by a margin of seven to 13 votes, the change in sentiment has now thrown the results in doubt. Administration leaders therefore, indefinitely postponed the test vote until such time as they can be more certain of the outcome.

The vote, under present plans, probably will not be taken before next Wednesday.

The Norris amendment was held responsible for the change of sentiment. Under its terms, the rebate or bounty paid farmers under the debuture plan would be reduced if the surplus in any crop increased from year to year. This eliminated one of the most serious objections to the debuture plan, since it had been attacked by President Hoover as certain to provoke greater and greater surpluses in the major crops.

Among the votes lost to the president, which at one time seemed likely to be against the debuture, were those of Senators Nye (R) of N. D., Fine (R) of Okla., and Copeland (D) of N. Y. All three announced they would vote for the amendment plan. Their decision was a surprise.

UNION SERVICES TO BEGIN SUNDAY

Sunday evening union services of the Methodist Episcopal church and the Presbyterian church will be held in the Presbyterian church marking the beginning of a series of union evening services for the months of May and June. The May services will be held in the Presbyterian church. An effort is being made to secure some outside speakers for these services.

Sunday night, Rev. Teensmeier will preach, using as his theme "Faith Hope Love These Three." The morning service in the Presbyterian church, Rev. Teensmeier will discuss "Our Modern Sunday—What are we going to do with it?" The stress will be on the day as a day of freedom for higher and better things.

SELL HEFFLEY DIES

2 DIE IN RIOTS

POMRAY, May 4.—Two persons were killed and 20 were wounded in a fresh outbreak of rioting in Pomray, England, today, as the police prevented the looting from spreading.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Starkey spent Sunday in Lancaster, guests of relatives.

DARBY GIRL IS PRIZE ORATOR AT GATHERING

Cold Weather Slows Up Athletics In County's Annual Field Events.

In raw, cold weather, a throng from all parts of the county saw the Ashville girls win the annual Pickaway field meet at Ashville Friday afternoon. The oratorical contest in the evening was won by Miss Meredith Redman, Darby-twp., an honor which will make her school the host for next year's athletic and oratorical meeting.

Spectators stamped and shivered as the field events, which started at 10 a. m. were run off. The final athletic contest was not finished until 7 p. m. Time, height and distance in all events were below average, possibly due to the unfavorable weather conditions.

Ashville won the boys' honors with 39 points; New Holland was second with 35 1-2 points and Williamsport was third with 23 1-2 points.

The girls' athletic meet was won by New Holland with 21 points. Scioto was second with 13 points and Ashville finished third with nine points.

ORATIONS SPLENDID
The oratorical contest, staged in a large Chautauqua tent, was exceptionally good and Dr. Cooper, department of public speaking, Ohio university, Athens, who was the judge, declared his task of selecting the winners was correspondingly hard. All of the orators were girls.

First place honors went to Miss Redman, of Darby, whose subject was "Stand Sure! Stand True." Only one point separated her from Miss Geraldine Jennings, New Holland, whose address on "Heart and Home" won second place. Miss Dorothy Hill, Mühlenberg, with "Footprints" was third place winner and a fraction of a point behind her in fourth place was Miss Martha Ours, Jackson, with "Uncrowned Queens."

OTHER SPEAKERS
Other speakers and their subjects were: Miss Garnet With, Monroe, "A Dream Church"; Miss Dorothy Wardell, Deerbrook, "Footprints"; Miss Mary Alice Scothorn, Walnut, "Character"; Miss Ruth Kreider, Pickaway, "Build for Character"; Miss Isabel Goehner, Scioto, "Footprints"; Miss Lillian Welch, Washington, "Education and What It Means Today"; and Miss Mary Skinner, Perry, "America, Awake from Thy Slumber."

Music was provided by the Ashville High School orchestra, the county high school mixed chorus and the county high school girls' chorus under the direction of Miss Clara Crook, Ashville, music director.

The results of the athletic events are as follows:

BOYS' EVENTS
100 yard dash—Clout, Ashville, first; Davey, New Holland, second; Davis, Scioto, third; Hurley, Williamsport, fourth; England, Walnut, fifth. Time, 11 2-5.

60 yard dash—Clout, Ashville, first; Davey, New Holland, second; Hurley, Williamsport, third.

Standing broad jump—Pherson, Mühlenberg, first; Lewis, Scioto, second; Porter, Monroe, third; Schleich, Williamsport, fourth; Flowers, Ashville, fifth. Distance—9 ft. 4 1-4 in.

Running high jump—Schleich, Williamsport, first; Wing, Williamsport, second; Lamb, Scioto, third; Hurley, Williamsport, fourth; Davis, Williamsport, fifth. Distance—17 ft. 8 3-4 in.

Shot put—Mace, New Holland, first; Porter, Monroe, second; Canter, Ashville, third; Ward, Ashville, fourth; Cook, New Holland, fifth. Distance—37 ft. 9 in.

Half mile run—Sawyer, Walnut, first; McGloire, Ashville, second; Graves, Pickaway, third; Redman, Williamsport, fourth; Pitt, Mühlenberg, fifth. Time—2 minutes, 10 seconds.

Pole vault—Cook, New Holland, first; Vincent, New Holland, second; O'Hara, Scioto, third; Davis, Williamsport, fourth; Hughes, Perry, fifth. Height—10 ft. 6 in.

Standing high jump—Schleich, Williamsport, first; Williamsport, second; Williamsport, third; Williamsport, fourth; Williamsport, fifth. (Turn to page 5.)

House Is Burned Down Attempting To Catch Gopher

MENOMINEE, Mich., May 4.—Lawrence Zaremba and neighbors going for a gopher saw the gopher go for a hole under Lawrence's home.

They started a fire to smoke out the gopher. The house was ignited and everybody had to go for water buckets. The home burned down.

Loss $5,500 and one gopher.

ELIAS STARKEY DIES SATURDAY

Retired Farmer Succumbs At Circleville Home From Heart Disease.

Elias Starkey, 71, retired farmer, died at 3 a. m. Saturday at his home, 352 Logan-st., after a two days' illness from heart disease.

He was born in Hocking-co on June 28, 1858, the son of George W. and Mary Ramey Starkey.

On Aug. 19, 1887, he was united in marriage to Mary Holt at Circleville, who, with four children, survives.

The children are Jesse A. Starkey, Chester H. Starkey, and Mrs. Ruth Good, all of Circleville, and Alva Starkey, Lancaster. A brother, Alonzo Starkey, Circleville, also survives.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Christian Union church. Rev. O. L. Ferguson will officiate. Burial will be in Reber Hill cemetery in charge of M. S. Rinehart, funeral director.

BROODER ON FIRE

The Circleville fire department was called out at 3 o'clock Saturday morning to the residence of Alonzo Starkey, 368 Logan-st., where a chicken brooder back of the house was on fire. Chief Wise estimated the damage to be $50.

FARMER ENDS LIFE

HAMILTON, O., May 4.—Hanging himself to a rafter in a barn at his home at Seven Mile, near here, James B. King, 66, is dead today. The body was discovered by his widow who, with five children survive.

LOCAL LEGION SELLING BOOK

Proceeds From "History of Lost Battalion" Go Into Relief Fund.

A unique commercial proposition, designed to assist the local American Legion Post in raising funds for American Legion Relief fund has been inaugurated in Circleville, and as an interesting sidelight on the same, it is being conducted wholly on the telephone.

There is no house-to-house canvass for the sale of the book entitled, "History and Rhymes of the Lost Battalion," according to Robt. Young, post commander.

The book itself is a handsomely bound volume, telling not only the history of this famous World War battalion, but also containing the most famous of the many poems which were written in connection with its daring and immortal exploit.

Commander Young explained today that the method of procedure is for the person to be called by telephone, the caller in the headquarters explaining briefly the reason for the call, and attention to the sale of the book. Those who state they would like to receive the book are later visited by a representative of the Post who delivers the book in question, which contains the name of the purchaser, and is paid the dollar for the same.

"This is a commercial proposition wholly in which the purchaser gets value received for each dollar expended," said Mr. Young Saturday. "And at the same time they are assisting materially in the work of the Legion."

The book contains a double page reproduction of the U. S. official photographs of the "Lost Battalion," and photographs of its officers.

Historians will never be able to relate the experiences of the famous outfit in as interesting a manner as "Buck Private" McCollum tells them. Humor and pathos are mingled with official reports narrated.

The buck private tells of his three pals in a most interesting rhyme. They were Jimmy's digging in tool; Billy his gas mask and Jack, his tin derby.

BOY WHO TOLD UNDER ARREST

College Youth Held As Material Witness in Dorothy Peacock Slaying.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 4.—Eugene Bussey, the man who "kissed and told," was under arrest on a material witness charge today, the latest sequel to the killing and cremation of Dorothy Peacock by her husband, Earle Peacock.

The latter is held for the grand jury on a murder charge.

Bussey was taken into custody at the Hotel Biltmore in New York a few hours after District Attorney Frank A. Coyne had stated his belief that the John Hopkins university student's story was of no importance.

Bussey had related stories of "petting parties" with Peacock's wife before she was slain and burned by the jealous husband.

Coyne believes he has obtained two important admissions from Peacock that will strengthen the premeditation theory now being built up against the young radio expert.

Peacock admitted that he lured his wife to their Mt. Vernon apartment and struck her over the head one minute after she entered, Coyne said, thus nullifying his previous story that he had struck her in a moment of jealous rage.

Peacock also abandoned his story that he strangled his wife after she had pointed a pistol at him, Coyne said, and admitted there was a safety catch on the pistol of which he was aware although his wife was not.

Administration Senators Battle To Prevent Hoover Defeat on Farm Aid

Stop Vote on Export Debiture Plan As Idea Gains Supporters.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Alarmed by an amazing change of farm relief sentiment, administration leaders in the senate today were fighting to save President Hoover from defeat in his first test with the new congress.

A decisive vote on the export debiture plan has been postponed until next week, due to a sudden unexpected trend of opposition toward the president.

The revolt has spread through the entire insurgent bloc, dribbled into the ranks of regular Republicans, and won over nearly the solid Democratic side of the senate.

Whereas a week ago, when debate began on the debiture, private polls showed it would be rejected by a margin of seven to 13 votes, the change in sentiment has now thrown the results in doubt.

Administration leaders therefore indefinitely postponed the test vote until such time as they can be more certain of the outcome.

The vote, under present plans, probably will not be taken before next Wednesday.

The Norris amendment was held responsible for the change of sentiment. Under its terms, the rebate or bounty paid farmers under the debiture plan would be reduced if the surplus in any crop increased from year to year.

This eliminated one of the most serious objections to the debiture plan, since it had been attacked by President Hoover as certain to provoke greater and greater surpluses in the major crops.

Among the votes lost to the president, which at one time seemed likely to be against the debiture, were those of Senators Nye (R) of N. D., Fine (R) of Okla., and Copeland (D) of N. Y. All three announced they would vote for the amendment plan. Their decision was a surprise.

HIGHER TARIFF BILL IS READY

Congress to Receive Tuesday Measure Increasing Certain Duties.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—A new tariff bill, revising the Fordney-McCumber act of 1922 and carrying generous increases in duties to protect many American industries and agriculture, was virtually completed by the house ways and means committee today. It will be presented to congress on Tuesday.

While it was asserted by Rep. Hawley (R) of Oregon, chairman, that all rates are still subject to change, he said the bill is completed and ready for a final vote of the full Republican membership. No further changes are anticipated.

Extraordinary precautions have been taken by the committee to prevent scandals the bill from becoming public pending its introduction, but well authenticated reports indicated that there will be many increases in rates and virtually no reductions.

About 15 per cent of the rates of the Fordney-McCumber act, many of which are agricultural, have been revised upward, it is understood.

GIVE BODY A CHANCE TO REGAIN STRENGTH

Convalescents, Fearing that Others May Think They Are "Wasting Time," Too Often Rush Back to Full-Time Work—Risking a Relapse

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

MORE frequently this year than ever I have urged you to watch out if you have had a hard cold, the measles, whooping cough or influenza. It is a common thing to have a cough after one of these ailments. That is a remnant of the diseases and should not be neglected.

The whole family rejoices after the patient has "recovered." He has been confined to the house so long it seems good to get him into the open. That is believed to be Nature's way to complete the restoration of health.

But the trouble about it is, not every patient is willing and able to make the necessary efforts. The little walks in the sunshine, alternating with short naps, and the eating of plenty of nourishing food—these are essential to full return to health and vigor. But inclination to do these things is lacking.

It is not to be expected that one who has had a long sickness, with high fever and great prostration, can rush back to hard work. It is a mistake to do so.

Yet nobody wants to "loaf on the job," or to be "yellow." The fear of what one's associates may say or think is a spur to hard work before the body is prepared for it.

So the frail convalescent, wobbly on his feet and dizzy in the head, does not know what to do. He thinks he ought to go to work, but knows he does not feel able to do so.

The ambitious parent hates to have the child out of school a single day longer than absolutely necessary. The poor youngster, too weak to resist, goes to school a couple of weeks too soon.

Do not forget that it takes time to recover normal health after an acute illness. The system has been poisoned by the products of disease. The reserve of vitality has been exhausted. The nervous system does not react as it should. The heart is weakened from overwork during the high fever. The muscles are soft and flabby.

Time alone, aided by rest, sunshine and frequent small meals of nourishing food, can remove the effects of disease. Even though you think it is wicked "to waste so much time," I beg of you to be sensible about the matter. You will be the winner in the long run.

May I say a word to the parents, too? Your child, who has had one of the contagious diseases of early life, must not be considered as on the way to full recovery until the scales show increasing weight.

There is sure to be loss of weight as a consequence of one of these attacks. At least, during the period of illness there will not be that gain of weight which children in growing age are expected to show. Until the scales give you a favorable response, a laceration one inch and a half long was sewed up by Dr. C. C. Hatfield, who attended Mr. St. Clair. This accident happened Wednesday morning and he was unable to attend his work as signal tender for the N. and W. railroad for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brooks and little daughter, Helen Louise, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. David Holderman in Circleville on Sunday.

Mrs. Carl Cunningham of Columbus, accompanied her mother, Mrs. C. M. Seuff, home from Columbus on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. David Terry will spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foster in Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Kriesel had for their guests on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. August Hantzshans and Mrs. Sadie O'Connor, of Columbus and Mr. and Mrs. Engle Kreisel.

Miss Ada Merriman was the week-end guest of her sister, Mrs. Howard Getten, in Columbus.

THE LAYMEN
"It is the Church's special function to uphold the finer things, To teach the way of living from which all that's noble springs; But the minister can't do it single-handed and alone, For the laymen of the country are the church's cornerstone." "When you see a church that's empty, though its doors are open wide,

It is not the church that's dying— It's the laymen who have died, For it's not by song or sermon that the church's work is done, It's the laymen of the country who for God must carry on."

CREAMED COMMENTS @ @ @
Josiah, the good son of a corrupt father, came to the throne of Judah at the age of eight and reigned 31 years. He instituted a thorough going reform in cleaning out the idolatrous worship of Baal and repairing the temple which had fallen into neglect and dilapidation. While the work of repair was in progress, Hilkiah made a great discovery.
V. 14—"Hilkiah, the priest, found the book of the law of Jehovah given by Moses." This statement implies that the book of the law was lost. The Bible is really lost today when it is read in a perfunctory way or if it is not obeyed. There are many lost Bibles today.
V. 15—"And Hilkiah delivered the book to Shaphan." Shaphan was the scribe whose business was to interpret the law. He indicated the importance of the lost treasure and stirred to action the high priest Hilkiah.
V. 16—"And Shaphan carried the book to the king saying, all that was committed to thy servants, they are doing." There is no finer indication of one's character than the certainty that he will welcome any newly discovered Bible facts or any helpful Bible interpretation. There is always an added revelation of God to those who are doing their best according to the light they have.
V. 30—"And the king went up to the house of Jehovah, and all the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem and the priests and the Levites and all the people, both great and small; and he read in their ears all the words of the book of the covenant that was found in the house of Jehovah." The house of Jehovah was the newly repaired temple. There is a close association of the word of God and the house of God. Able bodied men and women who hold precious the Bible are faithful in public service of worship.
V. 31—"And the king stood in his place and made a covenant before Jehovah, to walk after Jehovah, and to keep his commandments, and his testimonies and his statutes, with all his heart and with all his soul to perform the words of the covenant." When the one at the head stands in his place as related to God and man and furnishes that religious leadership which will make all citizens understand their place in relation to God and man, that is an ideal government.

How help develop the Prayer Life of a Class of Primary Boys Who Receive Little or No Religious Training Outside the Sunday School?

The child must feel the realness and nearness of God in his own life in order to pray. He might first be led to say just a "Thank you" for some particular happening that has brought pleasure to the group. Each Sunday session should be started with an invitation to God in prayer to be with the class during that period. These simple expressions will soon come from the children themselves. Emphasis should be placed on the fact that the most respectful manner possible should always be observed in addressing God. After these beginnings of prayer life are made in the class period, an effort should be made to carry it over into the outside life of the child. The suggestion might be made that it is a good thing to talk with so great a Friend each day, the teacher illustrating personally some of the benefits to be derived from communion with God in prayer.

Discussion on Questions S.S. Lesson

What Hilkiah Found in the Temple, II Chronicles 34:1-33 for Sunday, May 5th.

1.—How make sure that we are not losing our Bible?
2.—What are some good ways for reading the Bible profitably?
3.—How can we make Bible study more attractive?
4.—What is the test of Bible reading and study?
5.—What would be the result if our Bible were lost?
6.—How can we introduce the Bible more generally into our national life?

J. Douglas Adam says, "Fidelity is God's standard and it is the one thing needful. There is something materially wrong with the man whose object is success, and it is paralyzing his power, destroying his peace, and spoiling his joy. There is something better than sacrifice, and that is the consciousness of the presence of God."

Lesson Prayer. "O Lord, help us to seek Thee first and to use Thy word as a means in finding Thee. Forbid that we should neglect the teaching of Thy word and live independently. We thank Thee for the strength and comfort that has come when Thy promises are fulfilled in us.

Home Education

Ignace Paderewski, the son of poor parents who lived on a farm in Poland was passionately fond of music; because he was so anxious to become a truly great musician, he spent every available moment practicing the piano. In time people thronged to hear him play and were willing to give him large sums of money to play the piano so that he amassed great wealth and became the owner of a beautiful home in Switzerland. But Paderewski was not entirely happy, for he was a Pole and loved his country even more than he loved his music. Poland was an unhappy country because it was not free. With the outbreak of the World War, homes were burned, crops wasted and the people of Poland, sick and dying, were shut off from all assistance. Paderewski was too sad to play the piano. He opened his estate as a home for refugees and gave all he had for relief work. Then he traveled around the world giving concerts, using all the money paid him to help his native land. When the war ended, he said, "There is happiness ahead for my beloved country." Today Poland is free like America. And Paderewski was chosen the first President.

EAST, WEST TEAMS MEET FIRST TODAY

National League Will Play
Along Seaboard in Intersectional Series.

NEW YORK, May 4—With fair weather predicted, the first inter-sectional tests of the 1929 baseball season will get off to a double-barreled start today. The National league teams were scheduled to begin the East vs. West engagements yesterday but were held idle by rain while the clubs in the eastern half of the American league loop were riding the rattler westward.

In the National league the Pittsburgh Pirates are counted upon to unmask the Boston Braves, who have shown plenty of early foot. Last year the Braves won only five games from the Corsairs.

A real test of strength will come in New York when the reorganized St. Louis Cardinals take on John McGraw's disappointing Giants. Such drenched Gothamites as own or can borrow hip boots will attend this affair.

REDS AT BROOKLYN
The clouting Chicago Cubs play the Phillies, who obstinately refused to lie down and play dead for the Bruns last year. The Phils took seven games out of eleven in the Baker bowl and caused Joe McCarthy more trouble than old Pete Alexander did in '26.

The Cincinnati-Brooklyn game will be featured by the return of Glenn Wright to the line-up. The former Pittsburgh shortstop is said to have recovered from the injury to his throwing arm.

Of the American league clubs esaying the winning of the west, the Athletics face the toughest assignment. They come to grips with the St. Louis Browns, who are holding down first place with every intention of renewing the lease. Cleveland entertains Washington and Detroit hopes to make whoopee at the expense of the visiting Red Sox.

UHLE WINS AGAIN
The champion Yankees are in Chicago with their pitching staff a larger question mark than ever. Two of their hurdles, Gordon Rhodes and Henry Johnson, took a luscious lacing at the hands of the Pirates in an exhibition game yesterday, 8 to 2. Lee Meadows, Pittsburgh mound veteran who was idle last year, flashed a return to his old form by yielding only two hits in five innings.
In the only league game played, Detroit swamped Chicago 6 to 1, nipping the four-game winning streak of the White Sox. George Uhle, former Cleveland pitching ace, allowed only five hits in winning his fourth game of the year, while Gehring was the batting hero with a home run and a triple.

Odd Divorce Customs Found Among Malays

There is a peculiar Malay tribe in Sumatra, numbering only a few hundred persons, who spend their entire lives on the water, a small boat being their lifelong home. The stern of the craft has the roughest kind of a shelter, while amidships there is an arrangement of stone on which a fire is built. Forward there are baskets and other means of carrying fish and other commodities which these persons gather and trade. They have no laws or organization, but they have rather definite ideas of marriage and divorce. The lovelorn man, meeting the girl of his choice, asks her parents. If found to be agreeable the youth has to pay down 12 Dutch dollars (equal to 30 guilders); that is, if he is able to. But he also may purchase on the installment plan and make time payments. But in this case he cannot get a divorce unless the full amount is paid to the wife. The pair then go through a ceremony. If the husband wants a divorce, then he loses the 30 guilders paid, but if the wife wants to get divorced, then she must pay 120 guilders to the husband, which she will be able to do only in the rarest cases. If the man asks for a divorce, then he may decide whether the children must go with him or whether they may remain with the mother; if the wife obtains a divorce and has paid the 120 guilders, then the children may choose for themselves.

"Dear, dear! I suppose there can't be any worse players than myself."
"Well," replied the caddy, "I'm sorry, there may be worse players, but of course they don't play."

Sand Used as Defense
The expression "throwing sand in their eyes" is said to have had its origin in southern Siberia, where the tribes depend for safety largely on the fleetness of their horses. The sand is very sticky and the method of repulsing an opponent was by means of a handful of sand tossed at him with the result, if the aim was good, of at least temporarily bewildering and blindness.

SMOOTH and QUIET AT EVERY SPEED

TAKE OLDSMOBILE out and try it—in the swift press of traffic and on the open road. You'll find dazzling acceleration, as smooth and stagless as the pick-up of an electric motor. You'll find exhilarating speed, with freedom from noise or vibration throughout the entire range. You'll find a tireless, effortless flow of power, with a tremendous reserve for any emergency.

Oldsmobile's big 62-horsepower engine is smooth and quiet at every speed. It rests on sound-deadening, vibration-absorbing rubber mountings of special design. The chassis, too, is rubber-cushioned wherever cushioning should be used. Fabric beading, where metal would otherwise meet metal, eliminates annoying body squeaks. In keeping with its smoothness, quietness, and brilliant all-round performance, this finer Oldsmobile is easy to drive and comfortable to ride in. Controls are conveniently arranged. Both the front seat and the steering wheel are adjustable to suit the driver's individual preference. Oldsmobile's quick-acting four-wheel safety brakes respond to the slightest pressure.

Interiors are luxuriously comfortable, with wide deep-cushioned seats, and plenty of head room and leg room. And four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers assure restful riding ease on any road.

Come, take a drive in this finer Oldsmobile. Learn not only what it does, but how it does it. Experience thrilling, powerful performance that is smooth and quiet at every speed. Match it against other cars in its field. Then... compare its value!

How far should a girl sacrifice herself to win the love of a man?

DAPHNE

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON
Author of "The Secret Studio"

In this intensely interesting serial the author has vividly described the love of two girls—step-sisters—for the same man. The gripping drama of their struggle, and the vivid description of the utterly different ways by which these girls tried to win him, make this the most thrilling romance you have read this year.

Sets Frosh Record

Albert J. "Albie" Booth, Jr., of New Haven, Conn., since his entry into Yale last fall has been captain in football and basketball and is now elected captain of the freshman baseball team. We'll say that's stepping some for a young feller; at any rate, it is a record which has yet to be matched.

CROSSIN' THE EVERGLADES

Hard to Find
He was very old, but passionately attached to the royal and ancient game. The more he played, however, the more immature became his strokes, and his play became worse and worse as time went on.

Finally, after missing the ball 11 times in succession on one occasion, he turned to the patient caddy and remarked:
"Dear, dear! I suppose there can't be any worse players than myself."

"Well," replied the caddy, consolingly, "there may be worse players, but of course, they don't play."

Sand Used as Defense
The expression "Throwing sand in their eyes" is said to have had its origin in southern Siberia, where the tribes depend for safety largely on the fleetness of their horses. The tribe is very shifty and the method of rousting an opponent was by means of a handful of sand tossed at him, with the result, if the aim was good, of at least temporarily bewildering and blindness.

Drive this Car. You'll find it SMOOTH and QUIET AT EVERY SPEED

TAKE OLDSMOBILE out and try it—in the swift press of traffic and on the open road.
You'll find dazzling acceleration, as smooth and stageless as the pickup of an electric motor. You'll find exhilarating speed, with freedom from noise or vibration throughout the entire range.
You'll find a tireless, effortless flow of power, with a tremendous reserve for any emergency.

Oldsmobile's big 62-horsepower engine is smooth and quiet at every speed. It rests on sound-deadening, vibration-absorbing rubber mountings of special design. The chassis, too, is rubber-cushioned wherever cushioning should be used. Fabric beading, where metal would otherwise meet metal, eliminates annoying
body squeaks.
In keeping with its smoothness, quietness, and brilliant all-round performance, this finer

Oldsmobile is easy to drive and comfortable to ride in.

Controls are conveniently arranged. Both the front seat and the steering wheel are adjustable to suit the driver's individual preference. Oldsmobile's quick-acting four-wheel safety brakes respond to the slightest pressure.

Interiors are luxuriously comfortable, with wide deep-cushioned seats, and plenty of head room and leg room. And four Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers assure restful riding ease on any road.

Come, take a drive in this finer Oldsmobile. Learn not only what it does, but how it does it. Experience thrilling, powerful performance that is smooth and quiet at every speed. Match it against other cars in its field. Then... com-

How far should a girl sacrifice herself to win the love of a man?

DAPHNE

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Author of "The Secret Studio"

In this intensely interesting serial the author has vividly described the love of two girls—step-sisters—for the same man. The gripping drama of their struggle, and the vivid description of the utterly different ways by which these girls tried to win him, make this the most thrilling romance you have read this year.

THE SKIRTLESS AGE

Will there sometime come a skirtless age, when the women will give up the garment that is the traditional brand of femininity, and wear trousers or knickerbockers like the men?

Changes in clothing styles reflect not merely people's personal likes and dislikes, but they express the standards of the times. Women's short skirts are but the physical expression of their demand for a free and unhampered life. When the women make up their minds that their lives will be still more free and unhampered if they discard skirts altogether, they will do so.

But the consideration of beauty will always appeal to them. There never was anything beautiful about the bifurcated garments worn by the male sex. The women have generally concluded that when they put on knickerbockers, they acquire a stubbed and squatly look.

The lines of a skirt, however, are or can be made beautiful, since they represent a continuous and flowing curve from shoulders or waist or hips. So one guesses that the skirtless age will never come. But the women may some day conclude that they get a still freer motion by slitting their skirts to the hips or waist.

For years the short skirts formed the subject of the jokes of the paragraphs and the criticism of the censorious. But the women paid no attention to either, but just liked them and kept on wearing them. The stylemakers try at times for the sake of variety to bring back the longer garments again, and may do so for a time, but that time will not probably last long. The short skirt joke is about played out, and the paragraphs will have to look elsewhere for their humor, and the censorious are pretty well hardened to modern styles now. The women should be allowed to look after their own clothing, and whatever they say is proper, attractive, and suitable, will be all right.

Modern Coed Has Own Standard of Freedom

I have come in contact with a number of modern coeds at various institutions; and many of them have been able, not to say willingly or eager, to discuss excessively delicate subjects with the utmost freedom, as long as the discussion remains on a scientific or disseminate basis. If there is anything that many modern coeds will not talk about I don't know what it is.

I am quite unable to state, however, that they are infinitely more sophisticated than their mothers, or than the preceding generation of coeds; because I have no way of knowing how much their mothers knew. I have a strong suspicion, however, that their mothers knew a great deal more than they admit knowing; and it seems quite obvious that a great many dowagers who stand deliciously agnostic at the conversation and the crimes that are laid at the doors of the younger generation are ready to listen to the conversations and to repeat them at every opportunity.

I might even go so far as to hint that if opportunities do not present themselves they make their opportunities. It takes a high-grade of statistician to worry the inner meaning out of this state of affairs.—Kenneth L. Roberts, in the Saturday Evening Post.

In Love With the Saleswoman

By FREDERICK HART

THE search for books, old and new, carried Ralph Gordon into many strange byways. He had an independent income, and as he was a young man with ambitions he set out to make himself an authority on English literature, particularly that of the late Elizabethan period. He even went so far as to write a little on the subject.

One day when he was cataloguing his treasures he found that his edition of Ben Jonson was incomplete—that it lacked a small and comparatively obscure volume of the writer's early days, one not included in the standard set. He immediately set about to remedy this omission.

But the small book eluded him. His agents were certain that there was a copy in America—in fact, right in New York, where Ralph Gordon lived; but their efforts were unavailing. After a thorough combing of the larger book stores, Gordon announced that he himself was going to take up the trail.

His search led him one day to a small shop on the West side. He entered the place without hope; it merely was the booklover's instinct that prompted him to overlook no possible source. In the dim, dusty light of the shop he saw a girl come forward to wait on him. "Have you—" he began, and then stopped. The absurdity of the question he was about to ask dawned on him.

"No, we haven't—but we can get it for you."

"What?" he ejaculated stupidly.

"Oh, I know you, Mr. Ralph Gordon," she said with a smile. "And I know all about the book you're looking for. I said we could get it for you because all good book stores say that when you ask them for what they haven't. Isn't that so?"

Ralph Gordon looked more closely at her, and suddenly forgot all about his quest. He leaned on the counter and began to talk to her. To his amazement he found that she knew almost as much about Elizabethan literature as he did.

The incident had seemed so natural that it did not occur to him to wonder why the girl clerk in a cheap book shop knew so much, nor to be amazed that one with her evident breeding and good looks should work there. He went back in a few days and renewed his acquaintance. He demanded her name, but she refused to give it to him, though he begged hard. Almost every week he found opportunity to go down to the little shop, and it was not long till he was sure that he had fallen in love with the adorable little saleswoman. And he did not even know her name!

Business took him away from New York for a month. On his return he hastened to the book store. It was late in the afternoon when he got there, and he was surprised to see a sign announcing a closing-out sale, and several hard-looking persons just leaving with their arms full of books. He entered. In a far corner he saw the familiar figure of the girl. At his step she looked at him, and then, seeing who he was, ran to greet him with a little sob. Her relief at his appearance was so great that in a moment she was weeping frankly, while he was clumsily patting her arm.

When she could speak again he inquired, "What's the matter?"

But instead of replying to his question she suddenly dried her eyes and exclaimed: "Oh, I almost forgot! Wait just a moment." And she darted off to a room behind the shop.

In an instant she was back, carrying something in her hand; and before he could speak she showed him, to his utter amazement, the long-sought-after copy of Ben Jonson's little-known work.

"How—why—" he was beginning, when she silenced him.

"I'll tell you," she began. "This book was dad's chief treasure. I knew all about your wanting it, and urged him to let you have it, but he wouldn't. And insisted that I keep it from you—not even tell you that he had it."

"I see," he replied. He was turning the leaves absently when a letter fell out. He picked it up, and his eye caught the name on the flyleaf.

"What's this?" he exclaimed.

"Was your father Stephen Farwell?"

"Yes," she replied in a low voice.

Ralph Gordon knew Stephen Farwell as every other book collector did, as an eccentric old man whose chief passion, books, had impoverished him, and who had disappeared some years ago. And he had been keeping a shop all this time! And this beautiful girl, his daughter, had hidden herself with him! Tears came to Ralph Gordon's eyes.

"But will he want to part with it now?" he asked gently.

"He—he died last week," said the girl in a barely audible whisper. "I must get rid of these old books and things—hnt I wanted you to have this one."

Ralph Gordon hesitated no longer. "I want it," he said. "But I want you, too. Won't you let me take you and show you all my books and things—and love you a little when you aren't looking at them?"

She smiled up at him through her tears.

"Of course I will," she whispered.

From the floor the forgotten Ben Jonson stared up at the pair of them and seemed to say philosophically, "Well, they did such things in my day, too."

THE SPIRIT OF ADVENTURE

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

CHAPTER LXXXII.

THE events of the night were like a mad dream to Irene—the white and frightened faces, lights turned on all over the house, the doctor's quick orders, the nurses moving like white machines, the moans, the babbling voice. . . . What if she babbled coherently?

"Don't you smell something burning? Was that a rat—running out of the door?"

Like an automaton Irene obeyed Will Lundy's orders, as she had done in New York.

Out in the hall, Guinn and Tina clung together, he in his old gray bathrobe and she in her rose-colored negligee that looked incongruously gay. They shivered as each sharp cry stabbed them; they rushed for hot water from the kitchen; they brought what the doctor and nurses ordered, thankful for each chance of action. Dan walked the floor, with a face like a death mask of agony.

Just at dawn Lilith's baby was born, a little girl.

"Premature," said the Doctor.

"Yes," Irene murmured.

One nurse took the baby in charge, while the other helped the doctor care for Lilith.

Irene watched Will's grim face for its unspoken message. He worked furiously—expert, silent, save for his barked orders.

At last he beckoned Irene into the hall. "She's sinking."

"Oh, Will, is she dying?"

"I think so. Let the others come now."

They came—Guinn, with his face distorted, aged in a few hours; Tina, trembling, and tear-lipped, with the peculiar grayish pallor that very black negroes show in extremes of terror, or in the throes of death.

Irene put out a hand to steady her. "—has knocked us all up."

Poor old Sheila, so devoted to the family that she felt the blow as keenly as any one of them—and she'd thought the sullen old thing had disliked Lilith!

Sheba staggered to a chair, put her head in her hands and bent over, rocking herself to and fro.

So it was Irene who got the breakfast, set the table and summoned Guinn and Will to have a

"Yes, yes."

"Lilith, heart's darling, don't leave me!" Guinn sobbed, on his knees beside her.

She smiled, a strange, remote smile, as if she had already left him.

The flickering pulse grew fainter, the breath lower and lower. Then Lilith turned her eyes from father, husband, child.

"Mother!" she cried.

And with her stepmother's arms about her, her voice in her ears, Lilith fell asleep—as when those arms had clasped her on the first night of her life.

When she heard Sheila stirring about in the kitchen, early, Irene went down.

As she passed through the dining room she heard one of her waiting songs:

"Dogs sold my soul to de debil. In de turpentine woods alone; Sold it for conjure power, An' my heart turned to stone! When do I have to pay, Lawd? How soon do I have to pay?"

Sheba gave a start as her mistress entered the kitchen.

"Who been rampagin' round in my kitchen—getting things out o' place?"

Sheba lived in her own cabin in the back yard, so the upheaval that the house had known had not come to her attention.

"Miss Lilith's baby was born last night—a little girl," she explained in a dead voice. "And Miss Lilith—died."

Sheba seemed about to crumble to pieces, as unsure of her wits as a mountain in an earthquake. Her face was awe-stricken, blue-lipped, with the peculiar grayish pallor that very black negroes show in extremes of terror, or in the throes of death.

Irene put out a hand to steady her. "—has knocked us all up."

Poor old Sheila, so devoted to the family that she felt the blow as keenly as any one of them—and she'd thought the sullen old thing had disliked Lilith!

Sheba staggered to a chair, put her head in her hands and bent over, rocking herself to and fro.

So it was Irene who got the breakfast, set the table and summoned Guinn and Will to have a cup of coffee. Guinn would go to pieces if he didn't have something to give him strength.

Upstairs the nurses were busy with offices for the dead. The telephone jangled, and she could hear Pat answer it, stumbling over the message she found hard to say adequately, but her childish treble thrilled at being the bearer of such dramatic news—home-coming, birth, death, all in one burst of words.

"Father can't come to the phone now, because Lilith came home last night. . . . Yes. . . . And she had a little baby. . . . Yes. . . . And she's dead!"

Dan had sunk into an exhausted sleep, and Tina was locked in her room. Only Guinn and Will Lundy were with Irene at the breakfast table. She poured coffee for them, urged them to eat.

"Take some food, man," said Will. "You'll need something to keep you from collapsing under the shock."

Suddenly the dining-room door opened and Miss Mattie walked in. "What can I do?" Her practical tone was like a cool poultice on a fevered wound.

"There's everything to do," said Irene. "Take off your hat and stay by me."

Miss Mattie removed two long pins from her black straw toque and jabbed them through again after she had taken off the hat, as if she would work off her nerves in that way.

She had scarcely sat down on the edge of her chair, awaiting instructions, when the dining-room door opened again, and Abby Whitaker appeared.

"Howdy do, Irene?" she said. "Howdy do, Miss Mattie?"

Then she surged over to Guinn with outstretched hands. "Oh, my dear, poor pastor, what can I say to you?"

He struggled to his feet, shook hands with her, and motioned her to a chair.

"It's a hard blow," he said. "I haven't got a grip on myself yet."

"Miss Mattie, if you and Abby will go into the living room, I'll be in a moment," said Irene.

Good Qualities of Fruits

Nutrition and Diet says: "The apple leads among the orchard fruits. It carries small amounts of vitamins A, B, and C. It has definite laxative properties, probably owing to the large cellulose content. The young apple contains a large amount of starch, but as it ripens this is rapidly converted into sugar until when fully ripe it contains little or no starch. The acid content decreases as the sugar increases. In like manner its pectin valuable in the formation of jelly decreases with the ripening process. The citrus fruits are next in importance to the apple, and their culture is being enormously increased. Oranges come first. They offer an excellent source of readily assimilable glucose, and for this reason orange juice is used when there is necessity for quick-assimilable carbohydrate which will throw the least burden on the digestive organs. The orange contains both vitamins A and B."

Clock Made for Pope

Marvel of Ingenuity

The most beautiful clock in England is said to be found in the British museum. It is believed to have been made by Pope Sixtus V, that pontiff, brought up (as some tell) a swineherd, who, amased, when he reached the holy see, such treasures as eclipsed the wealth of Europe; to whom much of the magnificence of Rome is owed.

Three stories high it stands, telling on its dial the fast days, the signs of the Zodiac, the motions of the sun and moon in their course. Beside the minute dial a cherub raises a sickle as the hour strikes while his neighbor turns an hour glass over.

But you will need all your eyes for the topmost story, divided into four balconied tiers. On the lowest the gods of the days of the week pass slowly round. Above, the Virgin and Child are seated, before whom angels make obeisance as they pass by. Next the four ages of man strike the quarters on a bell. On the topmost balcony Death comes forward at the hour and strikes a bell, the figure of Our Lord retreating meanwhile.

Crowning it all is a beautifully molded cock perched on the dome; and when the chimera have rung he flaps his wings and crows!

Circleville and Columbus Clubs In Meeting Here

In the spacious drawing room at the Jones residence in Park-pl., Friday afternoon were grouped the Papyrus club of Circleville, and the members of the Writers' club of Columbus, with also a number of guests from Circleville. These numbered nearly thirty guests, thirty minds with but a single thought—literature.

Mrs. Ward Robinson as president of the Circleville Writers' club took charge of the program, and asked Mrs. Carl Ritz to introduce Mrs. Tessa Smitz Webb, which she did in a most delightful and unusual manner. Mrs. Webb, a poetess, read some of her poems, in a fashion only achieved by one who had written the lines herself. One outstanding description in verse was of "A Sunset," "Snowflakes" and "Still Water." Her last poem, "April" was read by request. Mrs. Webb, who is a member of The Columbus Dispatch staff, had published this poem in last Sunday's paper.

Following Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Robinson, thanked her, and asked Mrs. Richard Brown, of Columbus, to introduce Mrs. Teters, which she did in complimentary fashion.

Mrs. Teters of Columbus, head of the Lazarus Book Shop, was the main speaker of the afternoon. Her informal talk was on "The Trend of Modern Fiction," and she kept closely to this theme, although with her wide knowledge of all kinds of books, it would have been simple, to divert the hour to other types of writing.

In quoting another speaker, Mrs. Teters said that the reading public was clean, capricious and glib. She also derided the numerous more or less unclean publications of late years, although these books are read and soon forgotten. She spoke of fads in literature as well as in other things, and gave examples of how for awhile there was an epidemic of historic novels, then mystery plays, English stories and so on, and that now the public was about due for another deluge of historic novels. "As to being inconsistent, the tastes vary in literature as well as anything else, and the choices are always changing. Mrs. Teters laughed when she spoke of how glib the readers are, and how easily the average fiction lover is duped into thinking a story is fine, merely by the excellence of style.

As to the type of story in late fiction the speaker told that the trend was toward character study rather than plot. From one late book, "The Lonely Heart," she read interesting pages, illustrating that this so called novel, read in spots, as fiction, others, as poetry, and still a third as an essay, and that this book was typical of many books in the last few years. Among other books that she had with her were "Dark Hester," and "The Six Mrs. Greens," both of which she recommended to all readers of modern fiction. Especially did she comment on this half dozen ladies of color, as a book for all. She also read excerpts from this volume.

Mrs. Teters is especially interested in children's books. She said that the Book of the Month club and similar organizations had accomplished wonders in forming the reading habit with some, because there will always be some who want to read what the other fellow is reading. But on the other hand she does not approve of the book a month club that will soon be started for children, for she thinks that up to this time they are the only ones who have been allowed to show their individuality in choice of books, and that now this is to be taken away from them.

Her talk contained many other points on new books, and the afternoon had passed before the listeners had heard nearly enough. At 5 o'clock the guests were invited to the dining room where tea was served from a table lighted by candles and centered with a bowl of tulips and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Carl Ritz poured.

Guests present from the Columbus club were Mrs. Webb and Mrs. Teters. Mrs. C. E. Loose, Mrs. Richard Brown, Mrs. Homer Peters, Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Lively; of the Circleville club were Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Carl Ritz, Mrs. E. O. Crites, Mrs. Elmer Wolfe, Mrs. Milton Kelstaid, Miss Nell Weldon and the hostess, Mrs. Howard Jones. Others present from Circleville were; Miss Mary Wilder, Mrs. Charles Lewis, Mrs. Oscar Howard, Mrs. Lloyd Jones, Mrs. Hildeburn Jones, Mrs. J. O. Eagleton, Miss Grace Moodie, Mrs. B. R. Bales and Miss Allison Delaplaine. Mrs. Joseph Gilmore of Jersey City, was also present.

BANQUET HELD AT MRS. VALENTINE'S

At the home of Mrs. Edward Valentine on the Ringgold pike, the largest event of the social season of Pickaway-town school took place. The beautiful home with an ample dining room was idea for this function which was one of the most delightful and elaborate affairs of the school. The colors of the class, pink and silver were emphasized in the flowers, table appointments, favors and programs.

Raymond Paxton was toastmaster. All of the faculty members were present and added their share to the program.

The juniors present were Dorothy Anderson, Ralph Enoch, Marvin French, Beatrice Graves, Marvene Haral, Ruby Honnold, Harry Lutz, Francis McKenzie, Rosemary McKenzie, Raymond Paxton, Marvene Penn and Hazel Wolford.

Their guests were: Helen Anderson, Bertha Biltzer, Forest Brown, Robert Bush, Donald Dodd Lucille French, Frank Graves, John Hood, Melvin Kiger, Claude Kreider, Ruth Kreider, Mary Rader, Glenn Ross, Lucille Poling, Edna Timmons, Mary Valentine, Julius Wright, Marv Radcliffe, Sara Swearingen, Mildred Wertman, U. C. Roush, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Seitz.

PARTY CELEBRATES THREE BIRTHDAYS

Mr. C. D. Doner and Miss Burnelle Goodman of Stoutsville, and Mr. Harry Steinhauser of Circleville, shared honors Friday night in a surprise party which celebrated the anniversaries of their birthdays. The event was staged at the Doner residence in Stoutsville across the street from the Goodmans. Miss Goodman, who was a casual visitor at her neighbor's home was enjoying his condescension when several guests arrived to congratulate him. Mrs. Doner managed to keep her there awhile longer until the whole party among whom were a group of her school friends, arrived, and showered her with best wishes, also.

It was a happy evening for neighbors and friends, that came to a close after the serving of bountiful refreshments. The guests present to enjoy the celebration were, Mr. and Mrs. Doner, Miss Burnelle Goodman, Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Wenrich, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh and daughter Anna Ruth, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Goodman, Della Lou Goodman, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Kocher, Mrs. L. W. Creager, Mrs. G. M. Valentine, Miss Maxine Valentine, Miss Florence Hoffman, Miss Pauline Thomas, Miss Lois Neff, Miss Viola Kocher, Miss Anna Marion, Miss Florence Valentine, Miss Helen Creager, Miss Besse Creager and William Huston, all of Stoutsville, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Steinhauser and son David and Miss Allison Delaplaine of Circleville.

MONDAY DANCE IS FOR EVERYONE
The American Legion Auxiliary needs everyone's fifty cents to help toward filling the spring hospital quota, for disabled soldiers. So everyone is bidden to the dance given by this organization Monday night at the Memorial Hall, where the guests who aren't forced to dance by the real orchestra may enjoy playing cards.

A JOURNEY NORTH

Perry isn't the only one who took a crew north. Mr. Fetherlin took his journalism class. But I'll wager, that the "Lucky 13" journalists got a hot reception compared with Mr. Perry and his crew. Professional courtesy, don't you know. Where did they go? Columbus Dispatch, Ohio's Greatest Home Daily. Interesting? Very. Why they set their type on one huge leaden plate that looks like half a silver cylinder. And those papers are printed so fast that you can't even see how it's done.

Where else did they go? Well, they visited the Stoneman Press Co. What do they print? O. signs, advertisements, programs, annuals, bulletins, and such things.

A vision of the trip-whirling presses, monotypes, linotypes, typewriters, press men, belts, fans, molten lead, paper, telegrams, folding machines, noise, quiet, speed, no rushing, precision personified.

Where else did they go and what did they do? Well, you'd be surprised. They took in a real show. I suppose they enjoyed it. Judging from the comments I imagine they did. They went to a fish house some where, and had a feed. All the girls had salads while the boys ate pie and later went for Coney Islands. But, say by the way, ask them about Coney Island sandwiches. That's real funny story-like a cub's first assignment to a National league ball game—say some "dogs" are as thick skinned as a politician.

I believe that this trip was really a great help in the making of the journalists of Circleville high school.

Any of the Staff.
P. S. Wonder why that last paragraph was written?
The Shephard.

STUDENTS ENTERTAINED

Thirty-two Evangelical ministers, who are making a tour of this part of the country, entertained the students Wednesday afternoon with a program of sacred songs, readings and prayer. Rev. Paulin, former minister of the Evangelical church of Circleville, in a short talk said, "A wide awake man, preacher or otherwise, still can learn." He stressed the necessity of understanding God's program for our lives.

The program consisted of the sacred songs, "Ready," "God is Coming," "Men Mounted" and three readings by Rev. Naumann from Will Carlton's Ballads. The first, "Farmer Stebins" at the Bat," was extremely funny. To bring out the moral of the first he gave "Life's Game of Ball." The last, "The Story of a One Legged Goose" was given with Negro dialect. It proved to be the funniest of all.

W. E. Bailey, chairman-president, and also "Santa Claus" of the group, wished the students all "A Merry Christmas."

HECKLING THE TEACHERS

A clipping from The Columbus Dispatch of April 24, concerning the affairs of teachers, has been brought to our notice. When we realize what actually happens to some hard working teachers, we have reason to thank our "lucky stars" that people are not quite so inquisitive in our own state.

The people of New Jersey decided that they would take no chances on their teachers, so the board of education of Dover distributed questionnaires among the teachers.

"Here is the import of some of the questions: Do you entertain your callers in the parlor, on the porch, or where? What do you spend for your laundry, or do you do your own? Do you room alone or, if not, who is your roommate? What do you do with your money? How many children do your parents have? Do you cook, wash dishes or sweep floors? How did your father make a living? What do you eat for lunch?"

"Of course we know that the habits and ideals of the teachers are of considerable moment to the public, but we must congratulate these New Jersey teachers for leaving the spunk to answer the questionnaires, in effect, as follows: 'It's none of your business.'"

OPERAETTA REVIEW

"The Belle of Barcelona" presented Thursday and Friday night, was as usual, a great success. It was very pleasing and funny, and was enjoyed by a full house.

Much credit must be given to the directors, Miss Wittich and Mrs. Gephart. Of course it is a well known fact that Miss Wittich is always successful with her presentations. Mrs. Gephart, former director of dramatics at Delaware high school, added two more successful performances to her credit as director of the speaking parts. The costumes of old Spain, rented from Sullivan's, Columbus, were especially beautiful, and added much to the play. The lighting effects were excellently managed. All teachers who aided in the make-up work must be complimented.

Elliott Barnhill, as the red headed Irishman, Pat Malone, was a complete knockout. Margie Hunks as his opposite, played a delightful comedy role. Hers was an unusual character. These two carried their roles through to a rollicking climax.

Peggy Courtwright as the Belle of Barcelona, must be complimented for her splendid singing and acting. She was superb. She had for her opposite, Howard Greeno. Peggy was fortunate in having a sister like Mercedes. Mary May Haswell, who portrayed the part of Margarita's sister, pleasingly entertained the audience by her duets with the romantic Toreador, John Heiskell.

Elliott Barnhill, as Pat Malone, had the auditorium in an uproar at each appearance. Elliott has that faculty so hard to acquire, of being himself in his part. Still Elliott had a "cooking" team-mate. Margie Hunks, Margarita's English governess, afforded many a chuckle to her audience. Something new. Something different. Still Marjorie made us wish that such a change might occur more frequently.

James Brown, as Mr. DeMontero, the aristocratic plantation owner, met entire approval by his stage appearance, make-up, voice, and character—always the drawing, easy going, head of titled Spanish family.

Ida Walters, De Montero's wife, was always the ambitious mother—not tyrannical, but at the same time a bit stubborn.

Hugh Cartright, the unwanted suitor, in true villain style, wooed his lady love to no avail. Hugh, too, put feeling in his acting. About the best bouquet we can give him is he was too true a master villain type.

Charles Kirkpatrick, overseer of the DeMontero plantation, easily made us feel that a twinge of conscience is a pretty risky break.

Earl Hussey, captain of the Marine Corps, impressed the feeling of manhood and courage upon his patrons. He was ever the true "devil dog."

Jeanne Croze, executed a charming Spanish dance to the snap of the castanets. Jeanne as always, received the glad hand at the conclusion of her dance.

Helen Crist, a Spanish student gave a pleasing appearance in her part.

Malcolm Russell and Glen Heeter were typical Spaniards.

Howard Greeno, the American hero, was the heartbreaker of the evening. Howard sang with his usual pathos.

The Marine chorus acted as one in all its numbers. It drew one in all its numbers from the audience a buring feeling of patriotic loyalty.

The Spanish students in their dances and songs excelled in each number. They were fiery Spaniards.

The orchestra which presented the overture and accompaniment parts of the song and played between acts synchronized snappily. There was never a discord in the accompaniment.

The cast of the operaetta is indebted to those teachers and pupils who helped behind the stage and aided in the make-up both evenings.

HIGH TICKET SELLERS

Charlotte Steinhauser, Dorothy L. Glick, Pauline Hill and Mary Neff were high ticket sellers for the operaetta "The Belle of Barcelona." The other pupils who deserve credit for having sold 20 or more tickets are: Mary Hoffman, Ruth Carothers, Margaret Myers, Ruth Wolfe, Wilmina Phoebe, Eloise Stonerock and Mary May Haswell.

Pupils who sold 20 or more tickets acted as ushers Thursday and Friday nights.

NEW FILE INSTALLED

A new filing case was installed in room 15-16 Tuesday, April 30. The case will have a double partition and shelves adequate for storing standard tests and English forms. It is provided with locks and gives a very neat appearance.

The cast was built in the manual training department by Charles Eitel, Edgar Clark and Wilbur Adkins.

HIGH SCORER OF C. H. S.

"Fireescape" Hussey started things with a boom this year by scoring enough points in the first meet to receive his letter. In Earl's first event he made a mistake and thought that he was running the half mile.

The track was a quarter mile in length so Earl ran two laps or a half mile and stopped Coach Guthrie soon informed him of his mistake. E. K. started on another half mile grind. He finished at least 75 yards in the lead of his opponents. Earl was in a bad way after his mile run, but after a good rest, he showed that the Circleville boys were not to be outdone. In the next event he took an early lead but in the last 50 yards he had to fight hard for victory over Anthony, Bexley's crack half miler.

Heiskell was not so fortunate as Hussey but scored eight points, in the hundred yard dash and in the two twenty yard dash. In the prelims John took first in 220 and in the one hundred, but in the finals he won the 220 and took second place in the hundred. All of the boys are to be congratulated for their fine spirit and determination. Barnhill won in the 220 prelims, but missed the finals by 1-10 second in the one hundred.

TRACK BRIEFS

Fred Watts is a new candidate for track and has shown his ability to scratch the cinders.

Bill Jones? A present teacher of C. H. S. has taken part in athletics in the past year. Bill played football and basketball so we would like to see him on the track this season.

Adkins, Hussey and Heiskell scored C. H. S.'s points last Monday at Westerville.

Several track men were seen Tuesday night clearing the way with a shove for the pole vaulters. "Web" Adkins was chief shoveler.

Several track men have been working out in the gym with a basketball every night after practice.

"Jag" Davis, a track candidate, is to be complimented on the rich red color of his sun burned shoulder.

BREAKS RECORD

George Vlerabome, better known as "Tubby" now attending Muskingum broke the discus record for that school. Tubby's heave measured 120 ft. 8 1/2 in. This mark was made in a meet with Kenyon held last Friday.

BASEBALL STARTS

During the past week the juniors and seniors have been playing recreation ball during the physical education period. The juniors thus far have shown their superiority over the seniors in this pastime.

SENIORS MEET

In a meeting Wednesday night after school the senior class chose the Lutheran church for the Baccalaureate services.

It was decided that senior day would be Wednesday, May 8. Seniors have the choice of arraying themselves as children or victims of hard times.

A picnic will be held come time after the class play. It was also announced that the seniors would visit places of interest in Columbus soon.

Invitations for the commencement will arrive in the near future.

The probability of a Commencement dance was discussed but no definite plans were made.

GIRL RESERVES

Elizabeth Roundhouse, Evelyn Steele and Doris Peters were elected president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer, respectively in the meeting called by past president Marie Keilstadt of the Girls' Reserves Thursday. Advisor Watson gave a short summary of all subjects discussed during the past year.

HI-Y NEWS

Hugh Cartright, Robert Rooney, Sheldon Mader and Richard Nickerson, were elected president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, respectively, at the regular meeting of the Hi-Y Club Wednesday, May 1.

C. H. S. ORCHESTRA

Helen Yates, secretary of the C. H. S. orchestra reported an amount of $32.06 cleared from the orchestra's debut at the Cliftona theatre May 12. The orchestra will journey to the Virginia hospital at Chillicothe, where it will give its third program of the year.

MANUAL TRAINING

The manual training students are planning to give a display of their projects, in several downtown store windows.

Work is now being pushed in order that all of the students will be able to finish their projects at the end of this term.

By running classes continuously without intermission school was dismissed early Friday afternoon that the students might attend the Pickaway County track meet at Ashville.

EIGHTH GRADE TESTS

Pupils of the eighth grade have finished taking Ohio State Department of Education's Eighth Grade Tests. These tests are the same given to the schools dismissing early this year. The test in which Circleville marks will be counted will be given later. In geography John Laughlin with 95, John Mason with 94, and Sarah May with 94 were the highest. The median was 71, high 95 and low 41. In English Rosemary Jackson with 96, Gene Rader 96, and Margaret Buskirk 94 were the highest. The median was 75, high 96, and low 75.

The sixth of a series of seven King-Ealy history tests was given to the eighth grade April 30. The marks made on Los Angeles were: Median 76, high 88, and low 64; while the scores made in Circleville were: Median 76, high 94 and low 36. The highest in Circleville were: Glen Weiler 94, Charles Davis 88, Rosemary Jackson 88, Doris Schofield 88, Edwood McCreary 88 and Herbert Thomas 88.

John Robinson and Theda Bowsher of the seventh A made 90 in these tests. These were voluntarily taken.

COMMERCIAL NEWS NOTES

The bookkeeping department is offering three medals to the three students who have the highest grades for the year. The medals will be of gold, silver and bronze respectively. These awards are made by the Southwestern Publishing Co.

This week has been devoted to giving tests to all of the book-keeping classes.

Beginning typing students are learning to center all of their typewritten letters. Short-hand students are learning to make all business letters brief, concise and to the point.

Next week will probably be devoted to giving objective tests to all typing students.

PROUD OF RECORD

The pupils of the fourth grade of High-st school are very proud of the fact that they have attended school five months without a single tardy mark. They are striving very hard to finish the school year with such a punctual record.

GIVE BODY A CHANCE TO REGAIN STRENGTH
Convalescents, Fearing that Others May Think They Are "Wasting Time," Too Often Rush Back to Full-Time Work—Risking a Relapse

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.
MORE frequently this year than ever I have urged you to watch out if you have had a hard cold, the measles, whooping cough, or influenza. It is a common thing to have a cough after one of these ailments. That is a remnant of the diseases and should not be neglected.
The whole family rejoices after the patient has "recovered." He has been confined to the house so long it seems good to get him into the open. That is believed to be Nature's way to complete the restoration of health.
But the trouble about it is, not every patient is willing and able to make the necessary efforts. The little walks in the sunshine, alternating with short naps, and the eating of plenty of nourishing food—these are essential to full return to health and vigor. But inclination to do these things is lacking.
It is not to be expected that one who has had a long sickness, with high fever and great prostration, can rush back to hard work. It is a mistake to do so.
Yet nobody wants to "loaf on the job," or to be "yellow." The fear of what one's associates may say or think is a spur to hard work before the body is prepared for it.
So the frail convalescent, wobbly on his feet and dizzy in the head, does not know what to do. He thinks he ought to go to work, but knows he does not feel able to do so.
The ambitious parent hates to have the child out of school a single day longer than absolutely necessary. The poor youngster, too weak to resist, goes to school a couple of weeks too soon.
Do not forget that it takes time to recover normal health after an acute illness. The system has been poisoned by the products of disease. The reserves of vitality have been exhausted. The nervous system does not react as it should. The heart is weakened from overwork during the high fever. The muscles are soft and flabby.
Time alone, aided by rest, sunshine and frequent small meals of nourishing food, can remove the effects of the disease. Even though you think it is wicked "to waste so much time," I beg of you to be sensible about the matter. You will be the winner in the long run.
May I say a word to the parents, too? Your child, who has had one of the contagious diseases of early life, must not be considered as on the way to full recovery until the scales show increasing weight.
There is sure to be loss of weight as a consequence of one of these attacks. At least, during the period of illness there will not be that gain of weight which children of growing age are expected to show. Until the scales give you a favorable response, a laceration one inch and a half long was sewed up by Dr. C. C. Hatfield, who attended Mr. St. Clair. This accident happened Wednesday morning and he was unable to attend his work as signal tender for the N. and W. railroad for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brooks and little daughter, Helen Louise, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. David Horderman in Circleville on Sunday.
Mrs. Carl Cunningham of Columbus, accompanied her mother, Mrs. C. M. Senff, home from Columbus on Wednesday.
Mr. and Mrs. David Terry will spend the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Foster in Columbus.
Mr. and Mrs. Will Kriesel had for their guests on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. August Hantzshans and Mrs. Sadie O'Connor, of Columbus and Mr. and Mrs. Engle Kreisel.
Miss Ada Merriman was the week-end guest of her sister, Mrs. Howard Gatten, in Columbus.
Mrs. John Jones was a business visitor to Columbus Thursday and Friday.
The Ladies' Aid society of the M. E. church will hold a market on Saturday morning, May 11th at 10 o'clock in the domestic science room of the high school building. Remember the date and buy your Sunday dinner.

A JOURNEY NORTH

Perry isn't the only one who took a crew north. Mr. Fetherlin took his journalism class. But I'll wager, that the "Lucky 13" journalists got a hot reception compared with Mr. Perry and his crew. Professional courtesy, don't you know. Where did they go? Columbus Dispatch, Ohio's Greatest Home Daily. Interesting? Very. Why they set their type on one huge leaden plate that looks like half a silver cylinder. And those papers are printed so fast that you can't even see how it's done.

Where else did they go? Well, they visited the Stoneman Press Co. What do they print? O. signs, advertisements, programs, annuals, bulletins, and such things.

A vision of the trip-whirling presses, monotypes, linotypes, typewriters, press men, belts, fans, molten lead, paper, telegrams, folding machines, noise, quiet, speed, no rushing, precision personified.

Where else did they go and what did they do? Well, you'd be surprised. They took in a real show. I suppose they enjoyed it. Judging from the comments I imagine they did. They went to a hash house some where, and had a feed. All the girls had salads while the boys ate pie and later went for Coney Islands. But, say by the way, ask them about Coney Island sandwiches. That's real funny story-like a cub's first assignment to a National league ball game—say some "dogs" are as thick skinned as a politician. I believe that this trip was really a great help in the making of the journalists of Circleville high school.

Any of the Staff.
P. S. Wonder why that last paragraph was written?
The Shepherd.

STUDENTS ENTERTAINED

Thirty-two Evangelical ministers, who are making a tour of this part of the country, entertained the students Wednesday afternoon with a program of sacred songs, readings and prayer. Rev. Paulin, former minister of the Evangelical church of Circleville, in a short talk said, "A wide awake man, preacher or otherwise, still can learn." He stressed the necessity of understanding God's program for our lives.

The program consisted of the sacred songs, "Ready," "God is Coming," "Men Mounted," and three readings by Rev. Naumann from Will Carlton's Ballads. The first, "Farmer Stebins at the Bat," was extremely funny. To bring out the moral of the first he gave "Life's Game of Ball." The last, "The Story of a One Legged Goose" was given with Negro dialect. It proved to be the funniest of all.

W. E. Bailey, chairman-president, and also "Santa Claus" of the group, wished the students all "A Merry Christmas."

HECKLING THE TEACHERS

A clipping from The Columbus Dispatch of April 24, concerning the affairs of teachers, has been brought to our notice. When we realize what actually happens to some hard working teachers, we have reason to thank our "lucky stars" that people are not quite so inquisitive in our own state.

The people of New Jersey decided that they would take no chances on their teachers, so the board of education of Dover distributed questionnaires among the teachers.

"Here is the import of some of the questions: Do you entertain your callers in the parlor, on the porch, or where? What do you spend for your laundry, or do you do your own? Do you room alone or, if not, who is your roommate? What do you do with your money? How many children did your parents have? Do you cook, wash dishes, or sweep floors? How did your father make a living? What do you eat for lunch?"

"Of course we know that the habits and ideals of the teachers are of considerable moment to the public, but we must congratulate these New Jersey teachers for having the spunk to answer the questionnaires, in effect, as follows: 'It's none of your business.'"

OPERETTA REVIEW

"The Belle of Barcelona" presented Thursday and Friday night, was as usual, a great success. It was very pleasing and funny, and was enjoyed by a full house.

Much credit must be given to the directors, Miss Wittich and Mrs. Gephart. Of course it is a well known fact that Miss Wittich is always successful with her presentations. Mrs. Gephart, former director of dramatics at Delaware high school, added two more successful performances to her credit as director of the speaking parts.

The costumes of old Spain, rented from Sullivan's, Columbus, were especially beautiful, and added much to the play. The lighting effects were excellently managed. All teachers who aided in the make-up work must be complimented.

Elliott Barnhill, as the red headed Irishman, Pat Malone, was a complete knockout. Margie Hunsicker as his opposite, played a delightful comedy role. Hers was an unusual character. These two carried their roles through to a rollicking climax.

Peggy Courtwright, as the Belle of Barcelona, must be complimented for her splendid singing and acting. She was superb. She had for her opposite, Howard Greeno. Peggy was fortunate in having a sister like Mercedes. Mary May Haswell, who portrayed the part of Margarita's sister, pleasingly entertained the audience by her duets with the romantic Toreador, John Heiskell.

Elliott Barnhill, as Pat Malone, had the auditorium in an uproar at each appearance. Elliott has that faculty so hard to acquire, of being himself in his part. Still Elliott had a "corking" team-mate. Margie Hunsicker, Margarita's English governess, afforded many a chuckle to her audience. Something new. Something different. Still Marjorie made us wish that such a change might occur more frequently.

James Brown, as Mr. DeMonte, the aristocratic plantation owner, met entire approval by his stage appearance, make-up, voice, and character—always the drawing, easy going, head of titled Spanish family.

Ida Walters, De Montoro's wife, was always the ambitious mother—not tyrannical, but at the same time a bit stubborn.

Hugh Cartwright, the unwanted suitor, in true villain style, wooed his lady love to no avail. Hugh, too, feeling in his acting. About the best bouquet we can give him is he was too true a master villain type.

Charles Kirkpatrick, overseer of the DeMonte plantation, easily made us feel that a twinge of conscience is a pretty risky break.

Earl Hussey, captain of the Marine Corps, impressed the feeling of manhood and courage upon his patrons. He was ever the true "devil dog."

Jeanne Crowe, executed a charming Spanish dance to the snap of the castanets. Jeanne as always, received the glad hand at the conclusion of her dance.

Helen Crist, a Spanish student gave a pleasing appearance in her part.

Malcolm Russell and Glen Heeter were typical Spaniards.

Howard Greeno, the American hero, was the heartbreaker of the evening. Howard sang with his usual pathos.

The Marine chorus acted as one in all its numbers. It drew one in all its numbers from the audience a burning feeling of patriotic loyalty.

The Spanish students in their dances and songs excelled in each number. They were fiery Spaniards.

The orchestra which presented the overture and accompanied parts of the song and played between acts synchronized snappily. There was never a discord in the accompaniment.

The cast of the operetta is indebted to those teachers and pupils who helped behind the stage and aided in the make-up both evenings.

HIGH TICKET SELLERS

Charlotte Steinhauser, Dorothy L. Glick, Pauline Hill and Mary Neff were high ticket sellers for the operetta "The Belle of Barcelona." The other pupils who deserve credit for having sold 20 or more tickets are: Mary Hoffman, Ruth Carothers, Margaret Myers, Ruth Wolfe, Wilmina Phebus, Eloise Stonerock and Mary May Haswell.

Pupils who sold 20 or more tickets acted as ushers Thursday and Friday nights.

NEW FILING INSTALLED

A new filing case was installed in room 18-19 Tuesday, April 30.

The case which has a double partition and shelves adequate for storing standard tests and English forms. It is provided with locks, and gives a very neat appearance.

The cast was built in the manual training department by Charles Eltel, Edgar Clark and Wilbur Adkins.

HIGH SCORER OF C. H. S.

"Fireescape" Hussey started things with a boom this year by scoring enough points in the first meet to receive his letter. In Earl's first event he made a mistake and thought that he was running the half mile.

The track was a quarter mile in length so Earl ran two laps or a half mile and stopped Coach Guthrie soon informed him of his mistake. E. K. started on another half mile grind. He finished at least 75 yards in the lead of his opponents. Earl was in a bad way after his mile run, but after a good rest, he showed that the Circleville boys were not to be outdone. In the next event he took an early lead but in the last 50 yards he had to fight hard for victory over Anthony, Bexley's crack half miler.

Heiskell was not so fortunate as Hussey but scored eight points, in the hundred yard dash and in the two twenty yard dash. In the prelims John took first in 220 and in the one hundred, but in the finals he won the 220 and took second place in the hundred. All of the boys are to be congratulated for their fine spirit and determination. Barnhill won in the 220 prelims, but missed the finals by 1-10 second in the one hundred.

TRACK BRIEFS

Fred Watts is a new candidate for track and has shown his ability to scratch the cinders.

Bill Jones? A present teacher of C. H. S. has taken part in athletics in the past year. Bill played football and basketball so we would like to see him on the track this season.

Adkins, Hussey and Heiskell scored C. H. S.'s points last Monday at Westerville.

Several track men were seen Tuesday night clearing the way with a shovel for the pole vaulters. "Web" Adkins was chief shoveler.

Several track men have been working out in the gym with a basketball every night after practice.

"Jag" Davis, a track candidate, is to be complimented on the rich red color of his sun burned shoulder.

BREAKS RECORD

George Vlerobome, better known as "Tubby" now attending Muskingum broke the discus record for that school. Tubby's throw measured 120 ft. 8-1/2 in. This mark was made in a meet with Kenyon held last Friday.

BASEBALL STARTS

During the past week the juniors and seniors have been playing recreation ball during the physical education period. The juniors thus far have shown their superiority over the seniors in this pastime.

SENIORS MEET

In a meeting Wednesday night after school the senior class chose the Lutheran church for the Baccalaureate services.

It was decided that senior day would be Wednesday, May 8. Seniors have the choice of arraying themselves as children or victims of hard times.

A picnic will be held some time after the class play. It was also announced that the seniors would visit places of interest in Columbus soon.

Invitations for the commencement will arrive in the near future. The probability of a Commencement dance was discussed but no definite plans were made.

GIRL RESERVES

Elizabeth Roundhouse, Evelyn Steele and Doris Peters were elected president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer, respectively in the meeting called by past president Marie Kellstadt of the Girls' Reserves Thursday. Advisor Watson gave a short summary of all subjects discussed during the past year.

HI-Y NEWS

Hugh Cartwright, Robert Rooney, Sheldon Mader and Richard Nickerson, were elected president, vice president, secretary and treasurer, respectively, at the regular meeting of the Hi-Y Club Wednesday, May 1.

C. H. S. ORCHESTRA

Helen Yates, secretary of the C. H. S. orchestra reports an amount of $33.06 cleared from the orchestra's debut at the Cliftona theatre. May 12, the orchestra will journey to the Veterans hospital at Chillicothe, where it will give its third program of the year.

MANUAL TRAINING

The manual training students are planning to give a display of their projects, in several downtown store windows.

Work is now being rushed in order that all of the students will be able to finish their projects at the end of this term.

By running classes continuously without intermission, school was dismissed early Friday afternoon that the students might attend the Pickaway County track meet at Ashville.

EIGHTH GRADE TESTS

Pupils of the eighth grade have finished taking Ohio State Department of Education's Eighth Grade Tests. These tests are the same given to the schools dismissing early this year. The test in which Circleville marks will be counted will be given later. In geography John Laughlin with 95, John Mason with 94, and Sarah May with 94 were the highest. The median was 71, high 95 and low 41. In English Rosemary Jackson with 96, Gene Rader 96, and Margaret Buskirk 94 were the highest. The median was 75, high 96, and low 75.

The sixth of a series of seven King-Ealy history tests was given to the eighth grade April 30. The marks made on Los Angeles were: Median 76, high 88, and low 64; while the scores made in Circleville were: Median 76, high 94 and low 38. The highest in Circleville were: Glen Weiler 94, Charles Davis 88, Rosemary Jackson 88, Doris Scholfield 88, Edwood McCreary 88 and Herbert Thomas 88.

John Robinson and Theda Boshner of the seventh A made 90 in these tests. These were voluntarily taken.

COMMERCIAL NEWS NOTES

The bookkeeping department is offering three medals to the three students who have the highest grades for the year. The medals will be of gold, silver and bronze respectively. These awards are made by the Southwestern Publishing Co.

This week has been devoted to giving tests to all of the bookkeeping classes.

Beginning typing students are learning to center all of their typewritten letters. Shorthand students are learning to make all business letters brief, concise and to the point.

Next week will probably be devoted to giving objective tests to all typing students.

PROUD OF RECORD

The pupils of the fourth grade of High-st school are very proud of the fact that they have attended school five months without a single tardy mark. They are striving very hard to finish the school year with such a punctual record.

EXCHANGE

May Day Pageant, held under the auspices of the Lancaster high school athletic association will begin at 8:30 a. m. and last until 5 p. m., on Thursday, May 9.

THE MOUND-BUILDERS

The Warner Hotel was the scene of the Mother-Daughter banquet given by the Girl Reserves on April 11. One hundred and ten were present.

Short talks were given by the Girl Reserve advisors. The evening was brought to a close with the Girl Reserve song, "Follow the Gleam," and Girl Reserve "Tops."

Tuesday, May 28, has been set as the Commencement date for the year. One hundred and nine will receive diplomas.

In recent questioning of 150 students it was found that clerking and farming were the most popular summer work of high school students.

The Miami Student

Plans for the entertainment of returning alumni during the week of commencement, June 6, to 10, are being completed.

Annual Alumni Day will fall on Saturday, June 8.

Six Miami students and one geology professor are planning to accompany a group of students and professors from the University of Kentucky next week on a geology trip extending into Virginia and North Carolina.

The Miami freshman women debaters will meet the Wittenburg freshman debaters in dual no decision debates at Oxford and Springfield tomorrow afternoon.

Subject for debate this year is: "Resolved, that the Philippines Islands should be given their complete independence within a period of five years."

ROBERT PICKENS RUNS

Robert Pickens, of Tome academy, in the first track meet of the year, broke the local academy record for the 220 which he ran in 23.1 seconds. This did not equal his former record. He ran the 440 for first time and made it in 53 seconds. In this meet he made 10 points and his letter.

Yesterday he took part in the Pennsylvania relays, and today he runs for Tome against the Navy Plebs at Annapolis.

COLLEGE CHRONICAL

Naperville, Illinois
Herman Compton, former Circleville high school athlete came in first in the mile and the half mile run at Naperville, Illinois in the class track meet.

In a practice meet at Elmhurst college next Saturday, Herman will start as the best half miler and Russell, his brother, also a former local graduate, will tramp the cinders with his brother. Russell also ran the two mile.

Columbus Clubs
In Meeting Here

In the spacious drawing room at the Jones residence in Park-pl. Friday afternoon were grouped the Papyrus club of Circleville, and the members of the Writers' club of Columbus, with also a number of guests from Circleville. These numbered nearly thirty guests, thirty minds with but a single thought—literature.

Mrs. Ward Robinson as president of the Circleville Writers' club took charge of the program, and asked Mrs. Carl Ritz to introduce Mrs. Tessa Sweazy Webb, which she did in a most delightful and unusual manner. Mrs. Webb, a poetess, read some of her poems, in a fashion only achieved by one who had written the lines herself. One outstanding description in verse was of "A Sunset," "Snowflakes" and "Still Water."

Her last poem, "April" was read by request. Mrs. Webb, who is a member of The Columbus Dispatch staff, had published this poem in last Sunday's paper.

Following Mrs. Webb, Mrs. Robinsor thanked her, and asked Mrs. Richard Brown, of Columbus, to introduce Mrs. Teters, which she did in complimentary fashion.

Mrs. Teters of Columbus, head of the Lazarus Book Shop, was the main speaker of the afternoon. Her informal talk was on "The Trend of Modern Fiction," and she kept closely to this theme, although with her wide knowledge of all kinds of books, it would have been simple, to divert the hour to other types of writing.

In quoting another speaker, Mrs. Teters said that the reading public was clean, capricious and glib. She also derided the numerous more or less unclean publications of late years, although these books are read and soon forgotten. She spoke of fads in literature as well as in other things, and gave examples of how far while there was an epidemic of historic novels, then mystery plays, English stories and so on, and that now the public was about due for another deluge of historic novels. As to being inconstant, the tastes vary in literature as well as anything else, and the choices are always changing. Mrs. Teters laughed when she spoke of how glib the readers are, and how easily the average fiction lover is duped into thinking a story is fine, merely by the excellence of style.

As to the type of story in late fiction the speaker told that the trend was toward character study rather than plot. From one late book, "The Lonely Heart," she read interesting pages, illustrating that this so called novel, read in spots, as fiction, others, as poetry and still a third as an essay, and that this book was typical of many books in the last few years. Among other books that she had with her were "Dark Hester," and "The Six Mrs. Greenes" both of which she recommended to all readers of modern fiction. Especially did she comment on this half dozen ladies of color, as a book for all. She also read excerpts from this volume.

Mrs. Teters is especially interested in children's books. She said that the Book of the Month club and similar organizations had accomplished wonders in forming the reading habit with some, because there will always be some who want to read what the other fellow is reading. But on the other hand she does not approve of the book a month club that will soon be started for children, for she thinks that up to this time they are the only ones who have been allowed to show their individuality in choice of books, and that now this is to be taken away from them.

Her talk contained many other points on new books, and the afternoon had passed before the listeners had heard nearly enough. At 5 o'clock the guests were invited to the dining room where tea was served from a table lighted by candles and centered with a bowl of tulips and lilies of the valley. Mrs. Carl Ritz poured.

Guests present from the Columbus club were Mrs. Webb and Mrs. Teters, Mrs. C. E. Loose, Mrs. Richard Brown, Mrs. Homer Peters, Mrs. Montgomery, Mrs.

Thomas and Mrs. Lively; of the Circleville club were Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Carl Ritz, Mrs. E. O. Crites, Mrs. Elmer Wolfe, Mrs. Milton Kellstadt, Miss Nell Weldon and the hostess, Mrs. Howard Jones. Others present from Circleville were: Miss Mary Wilder, Mrs. Charles Lewis, Mrs. Oscar Howard, Mrs. Lloyd Jones, Mrs. Hildeburn Jones, Mrs. J. O. Eagleson, Miss Grace Moodie, Mrs. B. R. Bales and Miss Allison Delaplane. Mrs. Joseph Gilmore of Jersey City, was also present.
